Listening script

Audio is recorded (about 1:43). Read it with volunteers at a natural, friendly speed. The spoken lines use going to and want to. gonna and wanna are short forms. This listening uses the full forms.

> Narrator: Lesson five. Diego calls Northline Phone about a practice statement. Nothing on this call is a real bill.

Diego: Hello. I want to understand my statement. A fee was added, and I am going to ask about it.

Ms. Brooks: I can help. The fee was added on Tuesday. The fee was $6.

Diego: Was the payment received?

Ms. Brooks: Yes, it was. The payment was received on Friday. The payment was forty dollars.

Diego: And the credit? I want to know what that word means.

Ms. Brooks: The credit was posted by the phone company. Credit means money back. It is not a new phone.

Diego: Was the fee removed?

Ms. Brooks: No, it wasn't. The six dollars was credited. That is the money back.

Diego: Are the calls listed?

Ms. Brooks: Yes, they are. They are listed on page 2. The bill is mailed on the first of the month.

Diego: What is due today?

Ms. Brooks: Nothing is due today. Due today is $0. The due date on the statement is the 20th.

Diego: Thank you. I am going to read the due date again at home. The balance is $28.

Ms. Brooks: That is right. For a real charge, call the number on your own statement. This call is practice.

Narrator: Diego writes two lines: the fee was added on Tuesday, and the payment was received on Friday.

Narrator: That's the end of the listening.

- This lesson is not financial advice. Credit means money back on a statement. Do not recommend a loan, a card, or a bank.
- Never ask what learners earn, owe, or spend. All amounts are on the page. If a real charge looks wrong, call the number on your own statement.

- Reductions: the listening says going to and want to. People often say gonna and wanna. Learners only need to recognize the short forms.
- All names, places, and numbers are invented.

Lesson 5 (Week 5) · Read & Write

A. Read. Read once. Then find the answers.

Northline Phone · practice statement

This page is a practice phone statement. It is not a real bill. It is not financial advice. Do not use your own account number, and do not tell the class what you earn or what you owe. Every amount below is invented.

Northline Phone mailed the bill on the first of the month. The bill is mailed on the first, every month. On this statement, a fee was added on Tuesday. The fee was $6. The payment was received on Friday. The payment was $40. A credit was posted by the phone company. Credit on this page means money back. It is not a loan, and it is not a new phone.

The credit was $6, the same amount as the fee. The balance on the statement is $28. The due date is the 20th. Nothing is due today. Due today is $0. The calls are listed on the second page of the statement. The fee was not removed. It was credited, which means the money came back as a line on the statement.

Read the lines in this order. First find the fee. Then find the payment. Then find the credit. Then find the due date. If you need the name of the company, add by: the credit was posted by the phone company. If the paper cares about the payment, and not about a person, start with the payment: the payment was received.

Here is a three-line budget with invented numbers. Money in: $800. Bills: $500. Left: $300. You can say two passive sentences about it. The rent was paid. The fee was not included in the rent. You can also say, the fee is too high, if $6 feels high for this practice bill. Too high is a review from an earlier level. It is one line, not the main point.

If a charge looks wrong on a real statement, call the number on your own statement. Do not practice that call with a real account number. Tonight, Diego calls a practice desk. Ms. Brooks tells him the fee was added on Tuesday and the payment was received on Friday. She tells him that nothing is due today.

When you write, use six sentences and a three-line budget. Two of the sentences should be passive. Use invented numbers only. Name the fee, the payment, and the credit. Say what credit means on this page: money back.

B. Answer the questions.

1. When was the fee added? _____

2. When was the payment received?

3. How much was the fee? _____
4. What does credit mean here? _____
5. What is due today? _____

C. Write a 6-sentence note about the statement, plus a three-line budget with invented numbers. Use two passive sentences. This is writing check 2.

Lesson 5 (Week 5) · Exit Ticket

Name: _____ Date: _____

Explain one line from a statement. Four sentences.

Use two passive sentences, and say one reason you would call the company. Then give this page to your teacher.
